

How to use the Weald to Waves Display

Because of the scale of the Weald to Waves corridor, it is impossible for project staff to attend as many events as they would like to. Community groups are key to driving our engagement with people across Sussex. Included in this pack we have resources that you are free to use to talk about Weald to Waves and the vision of connecting 100-miles of Sussex to help tackle the biodiversity crisis.

The resources include the community membership poster, information on what Weald to Waves is and what pledging means, suggestions for children's activities, along with maps and infographics to explain the concepts behind wildlife corridors.

We encourage local groups to integrate these resources into your own stall, to illustrate how your activities can contribute to nature recovery on a landscape scale and encourage people to get involved.

We would always like to hear from you with stories and pictures from the day!
